The valet mode on a car alarm allows someone else to drive your car without having access to the security system. Valet mode is typically employed when you're having your car parked or serviced. It enables you to maintain possession of your security remote. The most common cause of car alarm going off randomly is a weak battery. If your car alarm goes off in the middle of the night an old battery is often the problem. If your car battery is over 5 years old it may no longer hold a proper charge. If the battery voltage drops below 11.5 volts, your car alarm can go off (when programmed at factory).
