Arab Islamic Laws

Sharia (/ ʃ ə r i ə /, Arabic: شريعة [ʃaʔriʔa]), Islamic law or Sharia law is a religious law forming part of the Islamic tradition. It is derived from the religious precepts of Islam, particularly the Quran and the Hadith. In Arabic, the term sharʔah refers to God's immutable divine law and is contrasted with fiqh, which refers to its human scholarly interpretations. The contemporary legal systems of the world are generally based on one of four basic systems: civil law, common law, statutory law, religious law or combinations of these. However, the legal system of each country is shaped by its unique history and so incorporates individual variations. The science that studies Law at the level of legal systems is called Comparative Law. This map shows Legal Systems around the World.. Civil law systems have drawn their inspiration largely from the Roman law heritage and which, by giving precedence to written law, have resolutely opted for a systematic codification of their general law. It is the most widespread system of law in the world. Common law systems is a legal system founded not on laws made by legislatures but on ... Sharia, Sharia law or Islamic law is a set of religious principles which form part of the Islamic culture. The Arabic word sharʔah (Arabic: شريعة) refers to the revealed law of God and originally meant "way" or "path".. Classical sharia deals with many aspects of public and private life, including religious rituals, family life, business, crimes, and warfare.
